		Musee du Louvre Sculpture, 13"x8"x5", Squatting Aphrodite Hand painted reproduction on black solid wood base. Mold made from a print of the original work. Once the way was opened by 4th century artists, especially by the Athenian Praxiteles who was the first who dared to represent naked goddesses, Hellenistic art in turn produced innumerable naked Aphrodites. But while Praxiteles sought to achieve ideal beauty, Hellenistic art, with its wider clientele, concentrated on satisfying a taste for realism and refined sensuality. However, the grace and freshness of this crouching Aphrodite is worth noting. The elegant pose and harmonious volumes reveal a sense of balance and a rhythm .

2216	Thomas Kincaid Chapel, Streams of Living Water	1830/2950; Comprised of Thomas Kinkade Studios' most sought after images, the Classics Collection is carefully reproduced on cotton fiber canvas using the methods and materials used by the artist on his original paintings. The stone walls of the chapel seem to grow out of the earth itself, while the pristine waters of the stream cascade in the distance. Deer, birds, rabbits, even a frog gather in humble and silent witness to the unity and harmony of the creation. And over all, the glorious vault of the heavens unfolds another glistening morning. 39"x 29-1/2"	1
2217	Morning Tea Print	Framed print of vase with flowers, tea pot and sweets, signed S. Bafoni, painting reproduction, 35"x31"	1

2218	Thomas Kinkade Cobblestone Village III	Cobblestone Village conveys the qualitative difference between life in an English village and an American small town. The pace of life in Cobblestone Village seems a century removed from what we typically find in our fast-paced culture. English country life is slow, rich, satisfying. Activity centers on the village to an extraordinary degree. People come daily for the bakery, dairy, green grocery, butcher shop... as well as the warm conversation and fellowship that truly sustain life. The gathered town folk in Cobblestone Village are as natural, as informal as the overgrown hedges of flowers that line the lane. The Brushstroke Vignette collection showcases Thomas Kinkade scenes on canvas textured to capture the exact brushstrokes from Thom's original painting. Inspired by antique Italian designs, classic frames compliment your artwork with a distressed look and a luxuriously warm finish. 43"x35", 146/5950	1
